Contents this week Politics

On the cover

Artificial intelligence will test societies' capacity to reinvent themselves. Communist China will not find it easy: leader, page 7, and briefing, page 16. Its models do not lag far behind America's, page 62. Can America teach its workers new skills? Page 27

How long can Iran weaponise Hormuz?

Gulf states should strike a deal with Iran, however unpalatable: leader, page 9. Our "Hormuz dependency dashboard", page 37. A global pipeline-investment boom is under way, page 56

Sudan: the forgotten war

The country is mired in one of the century's worst conflicts. This is the moment to strike a truce: leader, page 11, and analysis, page 51

Leviathan bound: a British parable

An AI-armed public could bring the government to a halt: leader, page 8. Cases prepared using AI are overwhelming Britain's employment courts, page 47. From parking tickets to planning, the state is under siege, page 49

In defence of animal testing

In America opposition to using animals in scientific research is becoming a cross-party consensus, page 67. That is misguided: leader, page 10
